

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

MOUNT AUBURN CEMETERY.

THE first meeting in furtherance of a design for a general cemetery, was had in Nov. 1825, at the house of Dr. JACOB BIGELOW in Boston, which was attended by eight gentlemen, viz: — GEO. BOND, J. STURGIS, JOHN LOWELL, SAM'L P. GARDINER, S. W. WARD, NATHAN HALE, JOHN TAPPAN, and DR. BIGELOW: with them the plan for a cemetery initiated, and Messrs. Bond and Tappan were appointed a committee for finding a suitable lot in a desirable location for the purpose. That committee labored every diligence in their duties, but without good success, and little or nothing was done on the subject for the five following years.

In 1830, Mr. Geo. W. Brimmer offered to the horticultural Society of Massachusetts, 72 acres of land, now constituting part of Mount Auburn, for a sum of 6,000 dollars, being at the reasonable rate of $83 33 1-2 per acre; this lot had long been used as a retired and beautiful spot, a cool retreat from the summer's sun, and a favorite walk for the students at the university and the youth in its vicinity. It was formerly known as "Stone's fields," but as if by general consent, it had acquired more interesting cognomen of "Sweet Auburn."

A public meeting was called, of gentlemen interested in founding a cemetery, in June 1831, at which the Hon. Judge Story presided, assisted by Hon. Edward Everett, as secretary. It was voted and there unanimously resolved, to accept the plan made by Mr. Brimmer: an act of incorporation obtained of the legislature of the state, June 23, 1832, and the consecration of Mount Auburn took place on the 24th of Sept. of that year: an interesting address was delivered by the Hon. Joseph Story, and the Rev. Dr. Ware and Rev. John Pierrepont, and the following hymn from the pen of the former gentleman, gave interest to that solemn and impressive occasion.

HYMN.

soon in flower and flesh shall fade, pering trees when ye shall fall, long sleep beneath your shade!

MOUNT AUBURN CEMETERY is situated on the western boundary line of Cambridge, and stretches into Watertown two thirds of its surface: lies west from Boston about four and a half miles, and one and a quarter miles west from Harvard University. comprises 110 1-3 acres of dry gravelly land, finely wooded with healthy vigorous trees in almost every variety of the forest species. There are five artificial ponds of water: the highest mound is 125 feet above the waters of Charles River, which flows nearly to the south and south eastern line of the cemetery. The whole extent of ground is divided by carriage avenues 20 feet wide, and foot paths six feet wide, (for an extent of thirty miles,) so curved and winding in their course, as to make it difficult for a stranger to keep the even tenor of his way and thread the mazy labyrinth with a mind serene; hill and glen salute the eye at almost every stopping point, and the ever varying forms of mausoleums, temples, and obelisks, from the most splendid production of the sculpturing art, to the neat and simple pyramid, claim attention in every direction. The grounds are mostly overshadowed by foliage of large forest trees, the whole combining to affiliate the spot, as a suitable place for the living to visit and there ponder on the ever changing state of man's mortality.

He who hath walked in grief, with mournful tread,
O'er that vast mansion for the silent dead;
Sure must have felt, slow creeping o'er his breast—
The impressive stillness of the place, for rest.

The greatest elevation, called Mount Auburn, is destined at some future day to bear a tower erected on its summit, whose apex may afford to the visitor a splendid panoramic view of the surrounding country, and the variety of scenes in which the eye may there revel, will nearly compete with that most interesting of all panoramic views, as seen from the dome of the state house in the city of Boston. If the proposed tower, may be seen the city loom in the east, with its ten thousand buildings and numerous elevated spires, steeples and eminences; its shipping and its railways to every section of country; to the right of which, in a south direction, Roxbury and Dorchester with their country seats, beautiful gardens, with the blue hills of Milton in the back ground; in the south, Back Bay and Brighton, with their numerous grazing and well cultivated farms, affording a rich treat to the eye: in the south-west, the beautiful villages Watertown and Waltham, with the meandering crooked Charles, and many water mills on southern boundary line; West Cambridge with famous Lexington on the north-west; Somerville and Medford in the north, Charlestown with its tall monument 220 feet high, its Navy yard and Dock, costing one and a half millions of dollars; Malden on the north-east-by-north, and Chelsea and Lynn on the north-east, bounded by the water of Massachusetts Bay, whose surface is dotted with the heads of many green islands and brilliant with numerous craft, plying their sail or steam, for reaching adjacent or distant places.

At the funeral solemnities of Dr. Spurzheim, his body was there deposited November 17, 1832, 56, the following beautiful Ode, by the Rev. Pierpont, was part of the exercises:—

Stranger, there is bending o'er thee
Many an eye with sorrow wet;
All our stricken hearts deplore thee.
Who, that knew thee, can forget?
Who forgot what thou hast spoken?
Who, thine eye,—thy noble frame?
But that golden bough is broken,
In the greatness of thy fame.

Autumn's leaves shall fall and wither;
On the spot where thou shalt rest;
Tis in love we bear thee thither,
To thy mourning mother's breast:
For the stores of science brought us,
For the charm thy goodness gave;
For the lessons thou hast taught us,
Can we give thee but a grave?

Nature's priest, how pure and fervent
 Was thy worship at her shrine !
 Friend of Man,—of God the servant,
 Advocate of truth divine,— Taught and charmed as by no other,
 We have been, and hope to be ;
 But while waiting round thee, brother,
 For thy light,—'tis dark with thee !—
 Dark with thee !—no ; thy Creator,
 All whose creatures and whose laws
 Thou didst love,—shall give thee greater Light than earth's, as earth withdraws.
 To thy God thy godlike spirit
 Back we give, in filial trust :
 Thy cold clay—we grieve to bear it
 To its chambers—but we must.

REV. JOHN THORNTON KIRKLAND, D. D.

A monument, which is a tribute of the Alumni of Harvard University to the memory of the late President Kirkland, has been erected on the summit of Harvard Hill. It is a large upright sarcophagus, of Italian marble, with gothic panels and decorations, and is surmounted by a book and double scroll. The following is the inscription :—

IOANNES THORNTON KIRKLAND, S. T. D.
 Decessit die Ap illi. XXVI.
 A. D. M DCCLX.
 Etatis sue LXIX.

John T. Kirkland, and a twin brother, George Whitfield Kirkland, were born at Little Falls, town of Herkimer, Herkimer county, State of New York, on the 17th of Aug. 1760. The father of the twins, was Samuel Kirkland, of Norwich, Connecticut, a useful missionary among the Indians for many years. In Nov. 1772, the family settled in Stockbridge, Massachusetts; at 4 years of age, young John T., received a kick from a horse in the centre of his forehead, which caused an indent which was prominent through life: at the age of 13, he went to Andover on a course of studies for two years; thence he was admitted into the freshman class of Harvard University. In the winter vacation of 1787, being then a junior, 16 years of age, he enlisted as a volunteer in the army of 4400 men, under the command of General Lincoln, to put down the insurrection of Shays; after a brief and successful campaign young Kirkland returned to his studies at Cambridge.

In a memorandum of his own hand writing, he observed, "one misfortune befel me in my junior year, which this world can never repair, my mother on January 23d. 1788. died; the highest pleasure I coul' ever enjoy was that of pleasing her."

Immediately after commencement on the 15th of July, he returned to Andover, as an assistant in the Academy for one year; being then doubtful in his wn mind, which of the two professions, law or divinity, should claim him its disciple. In July 1790, he returned to the paternal roof where he studied divinity with the Rev. Dr. Stephen West, but the high Hopkinsian doctrines of that teacher, were not congenial to the mind of the pupil. In 1792, he made a visit to his father in the state of N. York, and spent several months in the neighborhood of the Oneida Indians.

He returned to Cambridge College, and by means of the theological treasures which a later Hollis had contributed to the library of the University, Mr. Kirkland was enabled to pursue that free and independent study of the sacred profession, which led him to embrace more enlarged and juster views of religion than those in which he had been trained from childhood; on the 16th of Nov. 1792, he received the appointment of tutor in the department of logic and metaphysics, which office he held till June 14, 1794.

John Thornton Kirkland preached for the first time, at the Church in Summer Street, August 23, 1793; was ordained pastor over that society, February 5, 1794, and continued its revered and respected head, until 1810. On the 14th of November, of that year, he became President of Harvard University, which for 17 years, proved to be the Augustan age for that college; the breath of intellectual life was infused into the almost lifeless pulses of the institution, and it became animated with an entire new vital spirit: The law school was established; the medical school resuscitated and re-organized; the theological, erected into a separate department, and learned professors, placed in the chairs of the several faculties: The college was crowded with students; never had it been so popular and prosperous.

On the 1st of Sept. 1827, President Kirkland was united by marriage, to Miss Elizabeth Cabot, and on the 28th of March 1828, he resigned the office as Harvard's head.

s, yet he was truly evangelical; founding his faith on christian revelation, divine grace, and deep repentance for sin, as necessary to salvation: his publications gave proof of correct taste, and of great acquirements as a scholar. He died in June, 1812; at the early age of 29 years, in the prime of life, when the friends of learning and liberty, were indulging in ardent anticipations of future usefulness and fame.

He perished in his prime, "that youthful man, the hope of the church, the oracle of divinity, the facilities, of all studies, of all learning." His funeral sermon was by the Rev. Dr. J. L. Land, June 11, 1812, his remains were removed to Mount Auburn, in 1842.

A posthumous volume of his sermons was published under the auspices of the Brattle Street Society, which passed through several editions: though learning and enthusiasm there were but equals, and we may add, none to surpass him, he generated a taste and love for in the country, and which since then, has been much en-

VICINITY OF MOUNT AUBURN.

In the immediate neighborhood of the Cemetery, are some few objects worthy of especial notice: - The venerable ulma mater on college green, planted sixteen years after the landing of the pilgrims on the ice-bound rocky shore of Plymouth. Now 38 professors and tutors, 515 students, library of 50,000 volumes, and extensive physical apparatus, with every other facility for fitting the sphere of knowledge, education andious ambition: individual cost to prudent, car is about two hundred dollars per year, includ L. The botanic garden of the college, is about quarters of a mile northwesterly from Mt. Auburn, and is worthy of examination and admiration. Fresh Pond whose beautiful sheet of water cov-surface of one hundred and eighty-two and a half acres, is about one fourth of a mile north of Mount Auburn. This spot has been famous many years as a shady and pleasant resort for parties during the summer season; and the ice trade in winter is extensive: 100,000 tons were taken the past season from the pond, and it is capable of furnishing 1,000 tons to the acre: for the tropical climates of the earth this article has been shipped with a great turn profit to the enterprising merchant: it is said, at the State of Massachusetts may be supplied with cotton from abroad, sufficient for its manufacturing purposes, by exchanging cargoes of ice for cargoes of cotton; the conveyance for ice to the wharves, is by a railroad from the pond, to wharves in Charlestown, a distance of six miles, on which a road for passengers, also, passes three times per day each way; fare 12 1-2 cents. The passenger depot near to the two bridges in Charlestown.

The experiment for freezing the water, for early shipment, was successful in part, as it hastened its congelation three or four weeks earlier than it would have frozen in the pond, but the ice was not so clear, clean, or pure a quality.

Jacob Wyeth, a graduate of Harvard College, on a tour through Europe, not finding any spot beautiful to his imagination as his father's cow-pasture, on the banks of Fresh Pond, offered to take at part as his only share of the paternal property, and this was freely awarded to him by all concerned. It was soon converted into a place for public resort, and an independent fortune for its proprietor, was the reward for thirty years correct attention to its cumbent duties.

The proprietor of the said lot shall have the right to erect stones, monuments, or sepulchra, and to cultivate trees, shrubs &c.

shall have authority to cause the same to be done at the expense of said proprietor.

Fifth. If the land-marks and boundaries of the said lot shall be effaced so that the said lot cannot with reasonable diligence be found and identified, the said trustees shall set off, to the said grantee his or her heirs or assigns, a lot in lieu thereof, in such part of the cemetery as they see fit, and the lot hereby granted shall, in such case, revert to the corporation.

Sixth. If any trees or shrubs situated in said lot, shall, by means of their roots, branches, or otherwise, become detrimental to the adjacent lots or avenues, or dangerous or inconvenient to passengers, it shall be the duty of the said trustees for the time being, and they shall have the right to enter into the said lot, and remove the said trees and shrubs, or such parts thereof as are thus detrimental, dangerous, or inconvenient.

Seventh. If any monument or effigy, or any structure whatever, or any inscription be placed in or upon the said lot, which shall be determined by the major part of the said trustees for the time being, to be offensive or improper, the said trustees, or the major part of them shall have the right, and it shall be their duty to enter upon said lot, and remove the said offensive or improper object or objects.

Eighth. No fence shall at any time be placed or erected in, or around any lot, the material and design of which shall not first have been approved by the trustees, or a committee of them.

Ninth. No tomb shall be constructed within the bounds of the cemetery except in or upon lots situated in such parts of the grounds as shall be designated by the trustees for that purpose; and no proprietor shall suffer the remains of any person to be deposited in a tomb so authorized, for hire.

be granted by the corporation, it shall be I as a condition, that no Tomb shall be con within the bounds of the cemetery, except upon lots situated in such parts of the gro shall be designated by the trustees for that ]

The trustees have been led to this mea their conviction that the multiplication of to Mount Auburn has become a great and evil, encumbering the grounds during the season, with the materials and rubbish of b and endangering the stability of trees, by th excavations which are required in their for But much greater objection exists in the fact the frequency with which some of the tombs opened, and the want of sufficient tightness doors of others, have already given rise in months, to a perceptible nuisance, which, if n sonably checked, may hereafter grow into an able evil.

Since the commencement of the undertaking the Cemetery of Mount Auburn, the trustees at various times, expressed their earnest hope, the proprietors would see the expediency of ing their lots to the purpose of separate, rath of promiscuous interment. The very object mains are disposed of at the discretion of the undertaker. On the other hand, in a place like Mount Auburn, where space is abundant, the separate grave, allotted, marked and registered for the resting place of each individual, is likely to remain inviolate for ages to come. This peaceful and permanent rest was the undoubted object proposed in the original foundation of this sanctuary of the dead, now become the pride of our metropolis, and the solace of its mourners, and destined to be the model of imitation throughout our extensive country. So far as its purpose shall be adhered to, the original object of the founders will be realized, and we shall hope that its ample shades will not be allowed to perpetuate the narrow, insecure, and sometimes revolting arrangements, which its institution was expressly designed to supersede.

The trustees are aware that they have no control, in the foregoing respect, over the disposition of lots already sold. But they hope that, by restriction in regard to the future, and by an appeal to the good sense and sympathies of the present proprietors, they may be able to set limits to an evil, to which their attention has been imperatively drawn.

JACOB BIGELOW,	B. R. CURTIS,
GEORGE BOND,	B. A. GOULD,
MARTIN BRIMMER,	ISAAC PARKER,
CHARLES P. CURTIS,	JAMES READ.

 The trustees beg leave to call attention to the rule which requires that the bounds of each lot should be denoted by a permanent fence or posts, and the number of each be marked in a permanent manner in iron, or upon stone. A disregard of this rule has already caused the loss of many landmarks, and rendered a reference to the catalogue of proprietors, and plan of the cemetery, in many cases, impracticable.

MOUNT AUBURN.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

re was a garden, and in the garden a new sepulchre.**

What myriads throng, in proud array,
With songs of joy, and flags unfurled,
To consecrate the glorious day,
That gave a nation to the world !

We raise no shout, no trumpet sound,
No banner to the breeze we spread;
Children of clay ! bend humbly round,
We plant a city to the dead.

For man a garden rose in bloom,
When you glad sun began to burn;
He fell—and heard the awful doom—
"Of dust thou art—to dust return ! **

But He, in whose pure faith we come,
Who in a gloomier garden lay.
Assured us of a brighter home,
And rose, and led the glorious way.

His word we trust ! When life shall end,
Here be our long, long slumber passed;
To the first garden's doom we bend,
And bless the promise of the last.

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE.

One little bud adorned my bower,
And shed sweet fragrance round;
It grew in beauty, hour by hour,
Till ah ! the spoiler came in power,
And crushed it to the ground.

Yet not forever in the dust
That beauteous bud shall lie;
No !—in the garden of the just,
Beneath God's glorious eye, I trust,
'Twill bloom again on high.

...MURMURING SOUNDS

There had been a murmuring sound
With which the babe would claim its mother's care, Charming her even to tears. The spoiler set
His seal of silence—But there beamed a smile
So fixed and holy from that marble brow,—
Death gazed, and left it there;—he durst not stir
The signet-ring of Heaven.

Mrs. Hemans's Poetical Works.

We had copied these beautiful lines from a Philadelphia volume of "Mrs. Hemans's Poetical Works," but seasonably omitted them, to give credit to our own favorite American poetess.

represented as reposing in sleep on a slab : her head is gently reclining her likeness is well preserved ; her little breast : shoes and stockings off, tiny feet across the other ; the attitude, with a sweet smile of innocence and serenity on her lips, constitute, as a "œuvre" in the sculpturing art—so much seems to possess, as involuntarily to holder to lightly step around the spot, urbing so calm a cherub slumber.

On the slab are the following lines—

“*ed not for her the bitter tear, give the heart to vain regret,
but the casket that lies here—
a gem that filled it sparkles yet.*”

The execution of the frame work of the statue, was by Cary, whose work in the temples just erected to Kirkland and is so justly admired.

DECORATIONS OF THE TOMB.

“*rs to the shrine where we kneel in prayer, ship's offering, their place is there !
t of hope to the fainting heart, ce of promise they come and part;
in dust in the wintry hours.
forth in glory—bring flowers, bright flowers.*

Mrs. Hemans.

A place where the flowers of nature seem more cultivated than around the grave:
feelings of kindness towards those orned the tomb of a friend with embroidery in nature, and seem to give testimony of affectionate sentiments during the life of the deceased, continuing its holy and bright blossoms after mortality hath closed its mortal frame : there can be no kind return of the later tokens of love or of friendly affection, save the satisfaction derived from the good and just principle, and in having performed our duty.

"Some of the fragrance of flowers, bright flowers," for the tomb of your friends.

TOUCH NOT THE FLOWERS.

BY MRS. C. W. HUNT.

O, do not pluck the flowers; they are sacred to the dead

Touch not the flowers, the cherished flowers,
The festal gift of summer hours;
They're holy things; They bloom to shed
A gladdening radiance round the dead;
Their glowing cups and sweet perfume
Dissolve the shadows of the tomb;
'Twas no vain love,—the love that gave Their vernal freshness to the grave.

The snowy marble's sculptured height,
May seem to thee a prouder sight,
And ye may read in language fair,
High names and deeds emblazoned there;
But can its gorgeous splendor vie
With the imperial lily's die?
Its shrine a paper record be
Of all that binds the lost to thee?

Touch not the flowers; we know not death
Amid their loveliness; each wreath
That floats upon the summer gale
Bears saddening tones from sorrow's wail;
O ! can ye mark their bloom, nor feel
The truth their bursting buds reveal,
That earth her sacred trust must yield,
Whether from bower or tented field?

There, where yon simple daisy rears
Its smiling head, with many tears
They laid a fair young bride to rest;
Touch not the flower, her love hath blest;
Within its clustering petals lie
Memories and hopes that cannot die;
Her spirit o'er its leaves hath shed
A life that animates the dead.

How vain the costly pile to rear
 O'er those who scorned such trappings here;
 Swift time, with strong, o'ermastering power
 Prostrates high tomb, and lowly flower;
 But summer's breezes shall renew
 The rose's bloom, the violet's hue;
 Not so the carved and fretted stone—
 It springs no more; its glory's gone.

Touch not the flowers; O, can there be,
 Childhood, a holier type of thee?
 A fitter image of thy doom
 Than the wild floweret's transient bloom?
 Let the pure sculpture gleam for him
 Before whose breath the world grew dim,
 But spare to purify the shrine
 Upraising by a hand divine.

Touch not the flowers; the fervent prayer,
 Poured o'er the erring slumberer there,
 On incense pinions shall arise,
 With blissful chastening to the skies.
 God speaks in every glorious hue,
 Bright words of promise unto you;
 O'er all his healing love he sheds;
 Touch not the flowers. They are the dead's.

SUGGESTION FOR A CATACOMB.

Self preservation is one of the strongest natural propensities throughout life, and to preserve health during the time of our earthly sojourn, for future enjoyments or usefulness, is always accompanying the desire to prolong our existence.

When life has departed from the human frame decomposition commences its slow, sure, and appaling process, and the worms of the earth subsist upon the remains of "what it once was;" during this operation, if it is confined in a tomb, the effluvia, separable from the decay of animal substances, detrimental to the health of the living, which some occasions, has been the cause of sickness and of death.

If the lifeless form of a friend must be placed in a tomb to gratify the wishes of the living, it were better to prepare one for every burial on a small scale yet large enough for a brick-width-wall around the body, and that covered with stone slabs, for the support of the filling in earth; and thus, a tomb wall at once, safe from affecting the air we ile it would obviate all reasonable objec-rave.

any persons, the rough and harsh sounds
h and stones produce, on being carelessly nto a grave, is quite a trial to the poig-heir aggrieved feelings ; the tomb not ret offensive part of the operation, meets avor and decided preference; but on ma-eration of the objections to a tomb, and ommon grave, the catacomb above recom-ems to merit attention and adoption for from those obnoxious effects.

OICE FROM MOUNT AUBURN.

BY MISS H. F. GOULD.

on Mount Auburn ! a voice !—and it said, chosen me out as a home for your dead;
bustle of life ye have rendered me free;
we have hallowed—henceforth I shall be of graves, where your loved ones shall rest !

ust be peopled from life's busy sphere;
am, but the end of your journey is here,
I shall call ! and many will come heart of your crowds to so peaceful a home;
nd the good, and the young, and the old, dreamless slumbers, my mansions will hold.

till the child his loved parent resign;
er, the babe at thy breast must be mine !
er and sister for me are to part,
ver to break from each tie of the heart,
al the bridegroom and take from his side,
n my bosom, his beautiful bride.

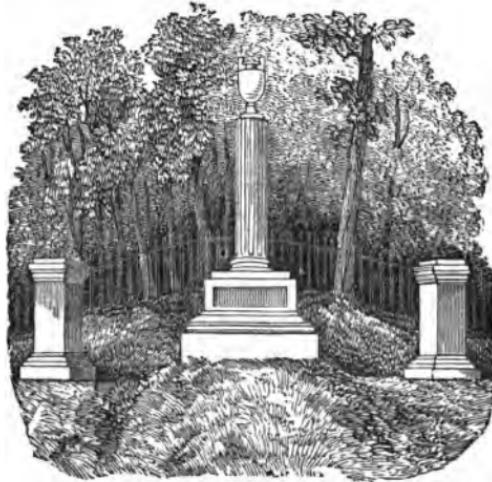

etely secure from all pain they shall lie, e dews gently fall and the streams ripple by ;
birds sing their hymns, amid air-harps, that sound the boughs of the forest-trees whispering around.
rs, bright as Eden's, at morning shall spread,
drop their leaves o'er the slumberer's bed !

is all earthly ! While thus ye enclose ere your ashes in peace may repose—e living may come and commune with the dead, and his soul, and with reverence tread l, which he soon may be sleeping below,— chosen the home where the spirit shall go !

" Shall it dwell where the gardens of Paradise bloom,
And flowers are not opening to die on the tomb?
With the song of an angel, a vesture of light?
Shall it live in a world free from shadow and blight;
Where the waters are pure, from a fount never sealed,
And the secrets of heaven are in glory revealed ?

" A day hastens on—and an arm shall then break
The bars of the tomb—the dread trump shall awake
The dead from their sleep in the earth and the sea,
And, ' Render up thine !' shall be sounded to me !
Prepare for that hour, that my people may stand, Unawed by the scene, at the judge's right hand ! "

HYMN.

Home of the coming dead !
The spot whereon we tread
Is hallowed ground :
Here earth, in sacred trust,
Shall hold their sleeping dust,
Until her bonds they burst,
And rise unbound.

Here shall the weary rest,
And souls, with woes oppressed,
No more shall weep :
And youth and age shall come,
And beauty in her bloom,
And Manhood, to the tomb ;—
Sweet be their sleep !

Around their lowly bed
Shall flowers their fragrance shed,
And birds shall sing :
On every verdant mound
Love's offering shall be found,
And sighing trees around
Their shadows fling.

The stars all night shall keep
Their vigils while they sleep ;
And the pale Moon
Shall lend her gentle ray,
To light the mourners way,
Who seeks at eve to stray
And weep alone.

But there 's a holier light !
Hope, with her taper bright,
On every tomb,
Points upward to the sky ;
There every tear is dry ;
There is no mourner's sigh,
Nor death, nor gloom.

Father ! to Thee we bow
 In adoration now,
 And bless thy love,
 For the assurance given
 Of life with thee in Heaven :
 Though here by tempests driven,
 There's rest above.

The project for founding a Cemetery in Chelsea, originated with Mr. Simeon Butterfield and a few others, and Mr. B. was chosen President of the Association ; under whose guidance the good work has thus far prospered, and as yet, holds out prospects for greater and more beneficial results for time to come.

HARMONY GROVE CEMETERY, SALEM, MASS.

The first meeting had on the subject of a Cemetery at Salem was in Lyceum Hall in February 1837, originating with Wm. H. Foster and P. Dodge, but the then difficulties attending the prosecution of the object were sufficient at that time to defer appropriations to more favorable auspices. On the third of September, 1834, another meeting was held at the same hall, when Stephen C. Phillips, presided as chairman and William H. Foster, as secretary ; on the sixth of that month, another meeting was held under the same officers, when Messrs. Francis Peabody, Joseph S. Cabot and Geo. Wheatland were chosen a committee for purchasing part of the present grounds : those gentlemen with Messrs. A. L. Peirson, S. C. Phillips, J. C. Lee, and Wm. Sutton, all of Salem, and Mr. Fitch Pool, of Danvers, were the most influential movers in the plan, and in carrying it out to its present beauty, perfection and usefulness.

The quantity of land purchased for this Cemetery was thirty five acres, at a cost of about 7000 dollars, being 200 dollars per acre.

Mr. Alexander Wadsworth of Boston, surveyed the grounds, and laid out the walks and avenues, and Mr. Francis Peabody, designed the gate way and rustic arch, which were built of stone. The incorporated in 1840. The conference on Sunday, at 5 o'clock P. M., poned from the 13th, on account of other,) seats were provided for three is, gradually ascending from Dell Chapel Hill; the ground there being in form of an amphitheatre ; a rustic and where the interesting services of e performed, and it was estimated, at and attentive assembly of friends ere must have been from six to persons.

Nathaniel A. White, delivered an address time, place and occasion. Prayers by the Rev. Dr. B. Emerson of Sa-Charles C. Sewall, of Danvers ; odes pen of Rev. James Flint, and Wm.
of Salem, and at the close of the cer-twhole audience united in singing a hundred, from the pen of Nathaniel hus finished and closed, one of the most agreeable days ever enjoyed by of Salem and its precincts.

of June, a public sale was held, for a n a choice for lots, and seventy-seven of, for 512 dollars above the minimum ig ten cents a square foot, for lots of et each ; thirty-six additional lots, few days afterwards, making 113 the opening of the cemetery. The ice is Chapel Hill, which spot is re-proprietors for the erection of a Chaporrible opportunity ; above 14,000 dolexpended in improving the grounds, of mausoleums and obelisks, have re, possessing much beauty in design with handsome enclosures to the lots; were disposed of by March, 1843.
grounds were within the boundary
, until by a Legislative enactment in 1840, the land was annexed to Salem, as also the three public avenues which lead to it; in the autumn of 1840, a road was constructed from the principal street in Danvers, to the Cemetery, and a gateway erected at that entrance in 1841.

The City government of Salem, united at an early date with the proprietors of Harmony Grove Cemetery in giving prosperity, stability, and usefulness to the undertaking, by a vote of 2000 dollars for five lots in different locations on the grounds, for the use of the city of Salem; comprising in all about three acres of land, but subject to the future care and government of the officers of the cemetery; and to meet the expressed wishes of many citizens of Salem, other burial grounds have been enlarged and made capacious enough for all required purposes for centuries to come.

"Harmony Grove Cemetery" seems as if nature had formed the spot for the purposes to which it is now consecrated: there are extensive views from its eminences; wild and picturesque dells; rough and craggy elevations of rocks; deep declivities covered with moss grown trees, open plains, shady groves, and sunny glades. Improvements will be continued to be made in ornamenting the grove with all the variety of trees and shrubs that will endure our climate; the attainment of the latter object being a permanent and prominent purpose with the designers of, and with the present government of the cemetery.

MEDITATION.

"It is not an unprofitable employment to frequently meditate on the transitory nature of the enjoyments of life, the uncertainty of their continuance and the last solemn scene which closes the efforts and puts a period to the exertions of the strongest as well as the weakest of mankind; meditation has a tendency to improve the kind affections, to curb, and to correct the aberrations incident in a greater or less degree to every one, and to impress a proper estimate of the vanities of life; reflect, that notwithstanding the boasted grandeur made among our fellow creatures, we may trace a long line of illustrious ones, possessed with the greatest power, or if of superabundance of wealth, yet the roaching when all these things shall be at an end, and we must be henceforth deprived of their enjoyment and go into that untraveled country from whose bourne no traveler returns.

R DAILY PATHS.

BY MRS. HEMANS.

ound our paths, if but our watchful eyes, unlike things, aod through their lowly guise ;
e a blossom showers its blossoms over our way, sparkles forth in the last red light of day.

e a spring shuns clear, beneath an aged tree, or the water's glass bows downwards by the bee ;
sun's glow on the birchen stems is thrown,
as pale as leaves, in copper-green and lone.

: winter brought, as they cross the cold blue sky,
I and I sit in their pencil'd shadows lie, heir tracery, by the fairy frost-work bound, e breast shudders a shower of crystals to the ground.

n all our paths—but sorrow too is there;
vi on us down the bright, still summer air !
ick hearts abo'it amidst the joyous things
y places glance, on many colored wings.

the past, we fill the happy woodland shades, nory of the dead is with us in the glades ;
angels lend the wind an echo's plaintive tone, ladies, and of silvery laughter gone.

e'en thus—to wander as we will—rough the grove, and o'er the breezy hill ?
h lie cases, that oftentimes bind us fast, row round we see the golden day flee past.

e woodlark's haunts, and the violet-dingles back, ounds and gleams, in the shining river's track ;
heritage of spring-time hope and mirth, ned spirits down with the cumbering dust of earth.

Too much, too soon, despondingly we yield !
e taught by the lilies of the field !
ls of Heaven—which tell us, in their flight,
the desert air forever guides them right !

Shall not this knowledge calm our hearts, and bid vain conflicts cease?
 —Aye, when they commune with themselves in holy hours of peace,
 And feel that by the lights and clouds through which our pathway lies,
 By the beauty and the grief alike, we are training for the skies!

“OAK HILL CEMETERY, NEWBURYPORT.”

This Cemetery was consecrated on the 21st., of July 1842, with prayers by the Rev. Mr. Campbell, Rev. Dr. Dana, and the Rev. W. Dimmick; an interesting and instructive address by the Rev. Jonathan F. Stearns; the whole services made pleasing and impressive by odes from the pens of the Hon. George Lunt, and Miss H. F. Gould.

“Oak Hill Cemetery” is located on the flat surface of a hill, comprising about four and a half acres, mostly covered with a strong growth of oak trees, about one third of a mile from Newburyport, via., Newbury, on the south of the Newburyport Turnpike; the west-south-west side of the hill, is bounded by a steep and abrupt slope. 233 lots have been laid out, varying from 150 to 400 square feet each, 75 of which have been sold at various prices; all future lots are to be disposed of at 10 cents the square foot.

A few extracts may be made from the address with good results; on page 3d, the Rev'd. orator observes, “on recurring to the history of our race, we are at no loss to find facts on the subject of respect for the remains of the dead; from the massive pyramid, the spacious catacomb, the beautiful mausoleum, and the bulky mound, to the simple flower-border and head-stone, which in some village grave-yard marks the spot where an infant's dust may rest; there are monuments encompassing the world, which bear witness to the existance of this sentiment. Ancient sepulchres may be found in all ancient countries; they abound through Europe and Asia, are crowded thick in some portions of Africa and are scattered every where on both divisions of the American continent, some of them supposed to be older than the pyramids.”

Again, excellent observations on page 18. "Respecting burial in Tombs or in the earth, there will of course be some difference of opinion. For myself I should give the preference to the latter. The vault frequently opened, exposes too often to the vulgar gaze the relics of what once was most dear to us, and the exhalations from a Tomb are injurious to the living; besides, the process of dissolution is too appalling; I would have it, if possible, go on and be consummated in the deepest seclusion of nature. Let us never see the loved form of the departed, after death has began to mar its beauty and expression; let the last impression if possible, be a natural and treasured one; and however reluctantly, let us then take a long farewell, and memory thenceforth, be the guardian of a form that can never be restored."

We close our remarks, with an extract from page 21. "We wish a spot so arranged and appropriated, that affection may feel free to indulge itself in adorning the repose of the departed, and where the taste of individuals may have scope, and the living be attracted, not repelled. Such a place is the spot we now occupy; its surface presents a pleasing variety; the broad level above us, affords a favourable opportunity for the display of taste in the embellishments of art, while the stately oaks, venerable in all ages, awakens the most venerable of associations; the heights and valleys, the steep declivities and gentler slopes, present a pleasing aspect to the lover of natures irregularities. From the highest eminence, the prospect is varied and delightful; on the north is our own beautiful town, dear at all times to the hearts of its sons; on the west is the hill where your venerable sires, with a portion of their offspring now slumber. On the south are the broad fields and meadows, extending far away towards the neighboring villages and bounded by blue hills and forests. On the east you may discern through the trees the mighty sea, that common cemetery of the world ; whose voice chants a low dirge, as the east wind stirs up its waves, and which seems to bewail its own dead gathered from every age and every clime."

"Our ambition is not great in this matter, as indeed all ambition were incongruous in connection with a place of rest for the dead. We do not think to vie with Mount Auburn or Harmony Grove. 1 is enough for us, if we secure to ourselves a quiet tasteful, hallowed spot, where the dust of our departing friends may be treasured and where we ourselves may repose by their side, when the last scene of nature closes on our view. Such a spot, i " Oak Hill Cemetery " ; a perfect gem of its kind and although small in comparison with some others it is large enough for the present wants of this place admitting readily of future enlargement, as occasion may require."

BY MRS. L. J. B. CASE.

'T is evening's hush; the first faint shades are creeping
Through the still room, and o'er the curtained bed,
Where lies a weary one, all calmly sleeping,
Touched with the twilight of the land of dread.

Death's cold grey shadow o'er her features falling,
Marks her upon the threshold of the tomb;
Yet from within no sight nor sound appalling,
Comes o'er her spirit with a thought of gloom.

See ! on her palid lip bright smiles are wreathing,
While, from the tranquil gladness of her breast,
Sweet, holy words in gentlest tones are breathing;
"Come unto me, and I will give you rest!"

Night gathers round—chill, moonless, yet with tender,
Mild, radiant stars, like countless angel-eyes,
Bending serenely from their homes of splendor
Above the couch where that meek dreamer lies.

The hours wear on : the shaded lamp burns dimmer,
And ebbeth that sleeper's breath as waneth the night,
And still with looks of love those soft stars glimmer Along their pathways of unchanging light.

She slumbers still, and the pale, wasted fingers
Are gently raised as if she dreamed of prayer ;
And on that lip so wan the same smile lingers,
And still those trustful words are treasuring there.

The night is done; the cold and solemn dawning
With stately tread goes up the expanse of sky ;
But vain its power, and vain the pomp of morning
To lift the darkness from that dying eye.

Yet Heaven's full joy is on that spirit beaming,
The soul has found its higher, happier birth,
And brighter shapes dim though its blessed dreaming
Than ever gather round the sleep of earth.

The sun is high, but from those pale lips parted,
No more those words die on the languid breath,
Yet still the vision of the happy-hearted,
Has triumphed o'er the mournful shades of death.

Through the hushed room the mid-day ray has wended
Its glowing poison to a pulseless b. east ;
The gentle sleeper's mortal dreams are ended;
The soul has gone to him who gives it rest !
